AdvanceD Accreditation Standards for Quality School Systems

ABOUT ADVANCED

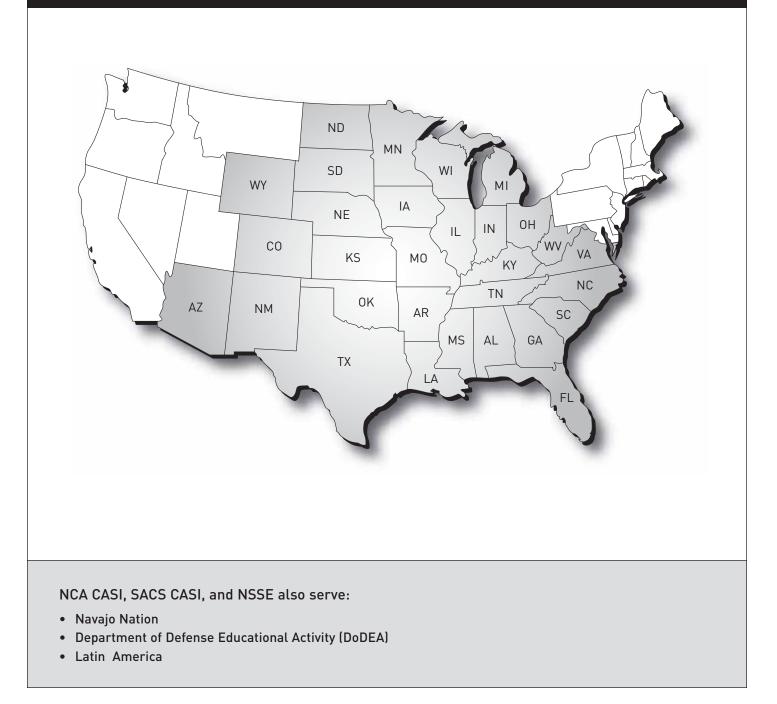

In April 2006, the North Central Association Commission on Accreditation and School Improvement (NCA CASI), the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Council on Accreditation and School Improvement (SACS CASI), and the National Study of School Evaluation (NSSE) came together to form one strong and unified organization under the name AdvancED.

Dedicated to advancing excellence in education, AdvancED works to:

- Help schools maximize student success
- Build the capacity of schools and school systems to achieve excellence through high standards, quality assurance, and continuous improvement
- Bring together research and resources for student, school, and system improvement

NCA CASI, SACS CASI AND NSSE SERVE SCHOOLS AND DISTRICTS ACROSS THE NATION AND THE WORLD

AdvancED is the world's largest education community, representing over 23,000 public and private schools and districts in 30 states and 65 countries and serving nearly 15 million students. Building on the strong state presence and volunteer networks of NCA CASI and SACS CASI, AdvancED leverages its size and global professional learning community to deliver the powerful combination of accreditation, research, and continuous improvement in a customized way to every school and district it serves.

As schools and districts gain access to the enhanced benefits of the global AdvancED community, they continue to receive accreditation under the brand names of NCA CASI and SACS CASI. The NCA CASI and SACS CASI accreditation seals are recognized across the United States and around the world and continue to be the seals used by AdvancED to bestow accreditation.

Background

NCA CASI and SACS CASI. Founded in 1895, NCA CASI and SACS CASI accredit public and private schools and school systems in 30 states, the Navajo Nation, the Department of Defense Educational Activity Schools, and Latin America.

NSSE. NSSE is a non-profit educational research and development organization founded in 1933 to support the work of the regional school accreditation commissions in the United States. NSSE provides educational leaders with state-of-the-art resources, tools, and support services to enhance and promote student growth and school improvement through accreditation.

ABOUT DISTRICT ACCREDITATION

AdvancED District Accreditation is a powerful systems approach to improving student performance results over time. District Accreditation recognizes that increasing student achievement involves more than improving instruction. It is a result of how well all the parts of the education system—the district, school, and classroom—work together to meet the needs of students.

District Accreditation applies the three pillars of accreditation—high standards, continuous improvement, and quality assurance—to the entire district to ensure alignment and support between and among the district and its schools. The District Accreditation process provides the district and all of its schools with a comprehensive framework for continually improving student achievement and district performance.

For the purposes of District Accreditation, a district may include school districts or systems, school corporations, diocesan school systems, or tribal school coalitions. Coalitions of unrelated schools joined together for the purpose of school improvement may be considered districts based on review by AdvancED.

AdvancED Accreditation Standards for Quality School Systems

The AdvancED Accreditation Standards for Quality School Systems form the foundation of District Accreditation. The standards build on NCA CASI's and SACS CASI's district accreditation standards. They are tightly aligned with the research on the factors that impact student performance (see the Appendix for a review of the research alignment) and were developed with broad input from practitioners and education experts. The standards apply to school systems within the 30-state region of NCA CASI and SACS CASI. Meeting these standards is one element of the accreditation process, as outlined on the next page.

ABOUT DISTRICT ACCREDITATION (CONTINUED)

Accreditation is a voluntary method of quality assurance developed more than 100 years ago by American universities and secondary schools. The goal of accreditation is to evaluate, verify, and improve an institution's quality.

To be accredited, the system must:

1) Meet the AdvancED Accreditation Standards for Quality School Systems and ensure that their schools meet the AdvancED Standards for Quality Schools

The standards require that the district and its schools have a clear vision and purpose; have effective and responsive leadership; have a rigorous curriculum taught through sound, research-based methods; collect, report, and use performance results; provide adequate resources and support for its educational programs; and value and communicate with their stakeholders.

2) Engage in continuous improvement

To demonstrate continuous improvement, the district and its schools must implement an improvement plan based on student performance and school/community data that includes clear goals for raising the achievement of all students. The district and its schools also must document growth in student performance and organizational effectiveness.

3) Demonstrate quality assurance through external review

Districts must be evaluated by a team of professionals from outside the district on a periodic basis. The team engages the district staff in a healthy, professional dialogue about district improvement efforts, validates that the district meets the standards for accreditation, and provides feedback and makes recommendations concerning future efforts to improve student performance and organizational effectiveness.

A detailed description of the AdvancED District Accreditation process can be found at www.advanc-ed.org.

DEFINING THE STANDARDS, INDICATORS, AND IMPACT STATEMENTS

The seven standards described in this document are comprehensive statements of quality practices and conditions that research and best practice indicate are necessary for schools to achieve quality student performance and organizational effectiveness. As districts reach a higher level of implementation of the standards, they will have a greater capacity to support ever-increasing student performance and organizational effectiveness. Each of the seven standards has corresponding indicators and an impact statement.

The indicators are operational definitions or descriptions of exemplary practices and processes. Together, the indicators provide a comprehensive picture of each standard.

The impact statement describes characteristics, processes, and actions that would be observable and verifiable in a district that effectively implements the standard.

The standards, indicators, and impact statements focus on systems within a district and systematic methods of attaining high student performance and organizational effectiveness. The standards and indicators are not isolated, but are systemic. They are related to and support other standards and indicators. For example: using student assessment data for making decisions is an indicator for Standard 4, Documenting and Using Results, because it is most closely related to this standard. However, data-based decision making is also an important aspect of effective leadership. A complete set of indicators for effective leadership can only be found when all of the standards are considered together. No one standard or set of indicators is complete without considering all seven as a collective whole. Consideration of this systemic "connectedness" is essential in understanding and applying the standards and indicators.

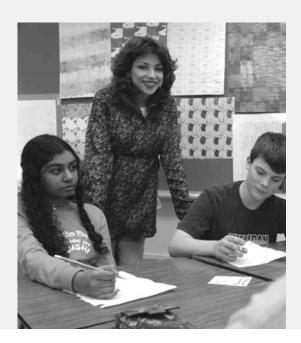

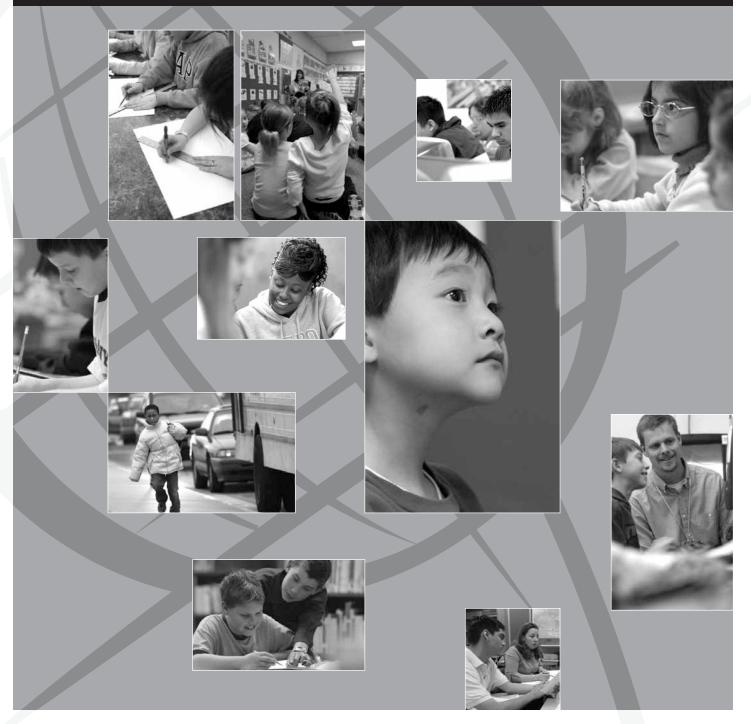

Using the Standards as an Ongoing Self-Assessment Tool

Accreditation is an ongoing process of meeting standards, continuous improvement, and quality assurance demonstrated through internal and external review.

Through the accreditation process, staff members across the school system continuously review the standards and indicators to ensure that the standards are being met and to identify areas that may need to be strengthened or improved. This review challenges the school system to identify the data, information, evidence, and documented results that validate that it is meeting each standard.

APPENDIX

ACCREDITATION STANDARDS FOR QUALITY SCHOOL SYSTEMS: RESEARCH ALIGNMENT

The Accreditation Standards for Quality School Systems are aligned with current educational research and best practices. Research supporting the accreditation standards involves factors within the scope of a school or school district that directly contribute to student achievement. Original research findings, research syntheses, and meta-analyses, as well as research from the domains of policy and practice, support the accreditation standards. The research base and information concerning the methodology that yielded the taxonomy for school improvement that describes the research base was identified by the National Study of School Evaluation. A publication presenting the research base, Technical Guide to School and District Factors Impacting Student Learning published by NSSE, is available online at www.advanc-ed.org.

The taxonomy identifies three primary categories and twenty-nine subcategories of factors impacting student achievement. To give the taxonomy utility for continuous improvement, the categories are described as "core tasks" to improve a school or school district. The NSSE research indicates that a school or school district seeking to improve student achievement needs to focus on three core tasks:

- Ensure Desired Results by expecting results and monitoring performance toward achieving desired results
- Improve Teaching and Learning by supporting students in their learning and maximizing teachers' effectiveness
- Foster a Culture of Improvement by developing a learning community and leading for improvement

The taxonomy identifies subcategories of "effective practices" that contribute to each of the three core tasks. Collectively, these effective practices are powerful levers for improving student achievement.

The seven AdvancED Accreditation Standards for Quality School Systems are represented in each of the three core tasks.

Core Task #1: Ensure Desired Results

Schools and districts ensure desired results for student learning by expecting certain results and then monitoring performance in achieving them. Schools and districts determine what they desire as performance results based on their expectations for student learning. Schools or districts that expect and ensure certain results:

- Implement a vision for student learning through goals and strategies
- Maintain high expectations for student achievement
- Maintain a relentless focus on improving student learning that permeates all levels of the school or district
- Are compelled by a common belief that, collectively, staff and other stakeholders can impact the desired results of the school or district

In addition, for a school or district to effectively monitor performance in order to produce the results it expects, it will:

- Use data to inform decision-making about teaching and learning
- Use a comprehensive assessment system to provide feedback for improvement in instructional practices and student performance
- Use classroom-based assessments to provide robust measures of students' academic, cognitive, and metacognitive skills
- Identify performance targets, indicators, and measures for comparing and improving a school or district's effectiveness
- Take appropriate and timely action to improve areas of identified needs

CORE TASK #2: IMPROVE TEACHING AND LEARNING

The ultimate goal of the continuous improvement process is to improve teaching and learning. Schools and districts that support students in their learning:

- Maintain school-wide and district-wide expectations for student learning that reflect academic, cognitive, and metacognitive skills
- Deliver on these expectations for student learning through a curriculum that is coherent and rigorous
- Align an assessment system with the curriculum that is enacted in the classroom through instruction
- Support the equitable opportunity of students to learn through individualization and differentiation
- Provide student support services and special programs to optimize individual student learning
- Support a student learning community that includes student involvement beyond the classroom and that offers a safe environment
- Involve families and the community in supporting children as learners

Equally important as supporting students is the district and its schools' support for teachers and the practices that maximize teachers' effectiveness. These practices help teachers:

- Use instructional strategies that provide students with focus, feedback, and sufficient opportunities to master skills
- Use appropriate strategies to assess students' academic, cognitive, and metacognitive skills
- Adapt instruction to meet individual needs and engage learners
- Maximize the use of time for instruction
- Create classroom environments conducive to learning
- Optimize technology and multimedia as learning tools

CORE TASK #3: Foster a Culture of Improvement

In addition to ensuring desired results and improving teaching and learning, the NSSE research indicates that schools and districts must cultivate an environment that has improvement embedded in its daily practices. The professional learning community will influence the impact of any improvement initiative. In order to foster a culture of improvement, learning community members:

- Share a common vision and goals that have enhanced student learning as the desired outcome
- Improve individual and collective performance by coming together regularly for learning, decision-making, problem solving, and celebration
- Enhance continuously individual effectiveness through inquiry, practice, and peer reflection
- Support a culture of collegiality, collaboration, respect, and trust

Leaders of a professional learning community have a unique responsibility to:

- Share leadership for the improvement of teaching and learning throughout the district and its schools
- Articulate a compelling need for improvement and provide meaningful ways for the professional learning community to focus on its performance
- Engage in practices that support the ongoing improvement of teaching and learning

ORGANIZATIONAL CONDITIONS

In addition to the three core tasks of improving schools and districts, research by the National Study of School Evaluation identified five "organizational conditions" within a school system that contribute to improve student achievement. All five organizational conditions are embodied in the AdvancED Accreditation Standards for Quality School Systems. These organizational conditions for improving schools and districts provide a solid foundation for continuous improvement.

- Quality Teachers the recruitment, placement, and professional development of teachers to achieve the school's or district's vision of student learning
- Effective Leadership the leader's decisions and actions to support the vision of student learning
- Quality Information the collection, management, and use of information to enable the school or school district to make informed decisions, take specific actions, and assess the results of improvement efforts that support the school's or district's vision of student learning
- Policies and Procedures that Foster and Sustain Improvement — the school's or district's development and implementation of policies and procedures that support improvement efforts
- Resources and Support Systems to Sustain Improvement — the allocation and deployment of human, technology, and material resources to target areas for improvement
